SCOTTISH AND SOUTHERN ENERGY GAINS CONSENT FOR £5 MILLION EXTENSION TO FASNAKYLE POWER STATION

The Scottish Executive has granted consent to Scottish and Southern Energy plc (SSE) to develop a 7.5MW extension at Fasnakyle hydroelectric power station to generate electricity from the compensation water flowing into the River Glass.

It is expected that the electricity generated at the new facility will be eligible for Renewables Obligation Certificates. The development is expected to cost around £5 million. It should begin generating electricity around the end of next year and will generate around 62.4GWh of electricity in a typical year.

The granting of consent for the new facility at Fasnakyle means SSE now has consent for the development of almost 170MW of new renewable energy. It also has applications for the development of an additional 200MW at an advanced stage in the planning process.

Ian Marchant, Chief Executive of SSE, said: "The development at Fasnakyle will enable us to reinforce our statutory undertakings on the flow of compensation water into the River Glass. It confirms our intention to maximise the contribution of Scotland's hydroelectric potential to the achievement of the country's targets for renewables."

SCOTTISH AND SOUTHERN ENERGY BUYS £12 MILLION FIFE POWER STATION

Scottish and Southern Energy plc (SSE) has today announced the purchase of a 120MW gas-fired power station in Cardenden, Fife ('Fife Power') for £12.3 million cash.

The combined cycle gas turbine plant was previously owned by a group of shareholders, including the US-based energy company El Paso, but has been in administration since January 2003. SSE purchased it from the Administrators Tom Burton and Colin Dempster of Ernst & Young.

The plant was constructed in two phases. The first a single open cycle gas turbine (OCGT), began commercial operation in November 1998. The second phase, conversion of the plant to CCGT, was complete and began commercial operation in January 2001. SSE intends to spend up to £3 million more to further upgrade the plant and reinforce its operational performance.

The acquisition, which follows the £242 million deal to acquire 100% ownership of Medway Power in October 2003, takes the capacity of SSE's power stations to almost 5,700MW. SSE now has the fifth largest portfolio of power stations (by installed capacity) in the UK, owning around 7.5% of the total.

Ian Marchant, Chief Executive of SSE, said: "The acquisition of a smaller station such as Fife Power will provide further diversity of plant mix within our generation portfolio, particularly in the mid-merit sector.

"The introduction of the new electricity trading rules (BETTA) in April 2005 will remove interconnector constraints and the value of Fife Power to SSE's generation portfolio can be further optimised. We expect Fife Power to run flexibly in order to both maximise its value and to support SSE's management of risk in the electricity market."

SCOTTISH AND SOUTHERN ENERGY ANNOUNCES WIND FARM DEVELOPMENTS

Scottish and Southern Energy plc (SSE), the UK's largest generator of renewable energy, has announced two new developments which will increase its wind energy capacity by 31MW.

It has completed the acquisition of an 11MW wind farm development at Spurness, on the Orkney Islands, and has been granted permission for the development of a 20MW wind farm at Artfield Fell in Wigtownshire.

Consent for the Artfield Fell site was granted by Dumfries and Galloway Council. The £15m wind farm will have 15 turbines and construction work will start within the next few months. It should begin generating electricity in the first half of 2005.

The Spurness wind farm was purchased from Spurness Wind Energy. The £8.3 million farm is due to have its first three turbines fully operational by the end of 2004 and consent is in place for a fourth turbine to be added subsequently. When complete, the wind farm will produce enough electricity to power 6,500 homes. NEG Micon has been appointed to build the site and SSE will own and operate it.

Ian Marchant, Chief Executive of SSE said: "The Scottish Executive's decision last year to grant consent for our 130MW wind farm at Hadyard Hill was a significant milestone in our programme of investment in renewable energy. I am pleased that it has been followed so swiftly by this additional consent at Artfield Fell and we are grateful for the co-operation of the various planning authorities. We are optimistic that the additional consents we are seeking will be granted during the next few months."

Mr Marchant added: "Spurness is another useful acquisition for SSE, taking forward our plans to build up our wind energy portfolio. It is also an illustration of our belief that we can further strengthen our generation portfolio through acquisition as well as development. We will continue to assess opportunities like this that may arise in the future."

Once initial commissioning at Spurness is complete, the acquisition will mean SSE's operational wind energy capacity will total 21MW by the end of 2004, adding to the wind farm at Tangy in Argyll. Last year, SSE announced it has received consent to build one of the UK's largest on-shore wind farm developments at Hadyard Hill in south Ayrshire, which will have a capacity of 130MW. In addition to these, SSE has applications with the relevant planning authorities for consents to build two additional wind farms and this amounts to some 120MW and the Scottish Executive is also considering SSE's application to develop a 100MW hydro-electric scheme at Glendoe, near Loch Ness.

Scottish and Southern Energy plc*PREFERRED ROUTE FOR NEW £200 MILLION*400,000 VOLT TRANSMISSION LINE IDENTIFIED

Scottish and Southern Energy plc (SSE) has identified its preferred route for the new 400,000 Volt electricity transmission line between the Highlands and the Central Belt of Scotland which has to be constructed if national targets for the generation of electricity from renewable sources are to be achieved. SSE expects that construction of the line and the associated substations will require investment of around £200m.

The identification of the route follows a 15-month study, during which SSE met with the relevant local authorities, statutory and non-statutory bodies and other interested parties to help identify the best route for the new line.

SSE is now embarking on a further round of consultation on the preferred route, and on additional environmental studies, with a view to submitting to the Scottish Executive in the third quarter of this year an application for consent to build the new line.

It aims to begin construction of the new line in the first half of next year, subject to timely progress of the planning application and final agreement on the regulatory framework for the investment. On this basis, the line could be operational in late 2007.

The new 220km line will run between Beauly and Denny and will replace an existing 132,000 Volt line, almost all of which will be dismantled and removed once the new line is operational. While the preferred route for the new line has been selected on the basis of environmental and technical criteria, 75% of it will be built on a similar route to the existing line.

Ian Marchant, Chief Executive of SSE, said: "The existing line was originally built to serve a very rural area with very low demand for electricity. It was not designed to cope with the large number of requests for connections to the electricity network which we are currently receiving from renewable energy developers. Publication of the preferred route for a new line is, therefore, an important milestone in our plans to upgrade the electricity infrastructure and thereby facilitate the growth of renewables in Scotland.

"Only the delivery of the necessary infrastructure will enable Scotland's renewable energy ambitions to become a reality. It is, therefore, vital that the wide support that exists for developing renewables in Scotland translates into a commitment to enabling this nationally-important infrastructure project to become a reality as soon as possible.

"We will continue to work very closely with local authorities, statutory and non-statutory bodies, the Scottish Executive and others to make significant progress over the next few months and beyond."
